AFTER THE MARAWI SIEGE:
WOMEN’S RECOVERY AND PEACE BUILDING IN THE PHILIPPINES

Philippines
Women displaced by the 2017 siege in Marawi City in the Philippine’s southern island of Mindanao told UN Women that finding income generating opportunities to restore their livelihoods is their top priority. Women internally displaced by conflict and violent extremism often face multiple hardships. Loss of livelihoods, insecure housing, and a lack of access to services reduces women’s ability to lead recovery efforts and rebuild their homes and communities. Read more ▶

WOMEN AND THE PENAL SYSTEM: RIGHTS AND REMEDIES

Thailand
Many women suffer rights abuses at the hands of the penal justice system. These include inadequate gender segregation in prisons, poor healthcare, and a loss of education opportunities, and their incarceration itself is often due to the lack of a gender-responsive approach in policing crimes such as drug offences, sex work and trafficking in persons. UN Women is advocating to promote the rights of women in detention and to shed light on the plight of this marginalized group. Read more ▶
