Ms. Saadia Zahidi
Head of Education, Gender and Work Initiatives, World Economic Forum

Saadia Zahidi is Head of Education, Gender and Work and a Member of the Executive Committee at the World Economic Forum. Under her leadership, the Forum’s System Initiative on Education, Gender and Work seeks to combine insights and action, producing unique analysis and mobilizing leaders to work together to set targets for impact, share best practices, create new public-private partnerships, muster resources and change mind-sets.

Saadia founded and co-authors the Forum’s Global Gender Gap Report, Human Capital Report and Future of Jobs Report. She advises CEOs and governments on gender equality, jobs, skills education and other talent issues.

She is a frequent speaker at international conferences and in the media. She was selected as one of BBC’s 100 Women in 2013 and 2014 and won the inaugural FT/Mckinsey Bracken Bower Prize.

She is writing a book on “Womenomics in the Muslim World”. She is from Pakistan.
